Who Should Attend

Anyone with experience leading projects can take a PMP certification course, but eligibility to take the actual exam requires 35 hours of formal project management education (or a CAPM certification). Candidates must have either a four-year degree with 36 months of experience or a high school diploma/associate degree with 60 months of experience.

About PMTraining

PMTraining provides professional training courses and exam preparation programs that help individuals and organizations earn project management and agile certifications through expert-led instruction, online tools, and certification-focused courseware.
